Event Information:

At the online conference on consumer policy in the digital age, organized by the German Federal Ministry of Justice and Consumer Protection in cooperation with the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) – supported by Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) we will examine how to ensure digital self-determination for consumers as well as access to justice and enforcement options. Politicians, academics, as well as representatives from consumer organisations and business will exchange their views and best practices.

How can digital self-determination be guaranteed?

Day 1: 14 September: Promoting digital-self-determination for consumers

Day 2: 15 September: Access to justice and new technologies

The conference will be held in English.

14-15 September 2021

09:00-12:00 CEST

14:00-17:00 WIB

The registration form is available in English and German language.

Official deadline for registration: 9 September 2021; after that date, the page will still be viewable, but the registration disabled.

There is no limit on the number of participants for the event.

All registered participants will be notified automatically by the organizers. Ahead of the event, they will receive the link for the livestream, plus token for logging in.

To avoid interference (i.e. “zoom-bombing”), the link and token should be shared restrictively.

The event will be streamed live on the BMJV platform here:

<https://www.bmjv-media.de/>

Access is available for registered participants who have received a “token” from the organizers to log in.

The livestream will only be available for the duration of the event.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL <https://www.bmjv-media.de/>. The page header includes the logo of the Federal Ministry of Justice and Consumer Protection, a "Start" button, a "Livestream" button with a play icon, and a language selector set to "English". A large blue "Livestream" button is prominently displayed in the center of the page. Below this, the text reads: "At the online conference on consumer policy in the digital age, organized by the German Federal Ministry of Justice and Consumer Protection in cooperation with the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) - supported by Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) we will examine how to ensure digital self-determination for consumers as well as access to justice and enforcement options. Politicians, academics, as well as representatives from consumer organisations and business will exchange their views and best practices." The text continues with the question "How can digital self-determination be guaranteed?" and lists the dates: "Day 1: 14 September: Promoting digital-self-determination for consumers" and "Day 2: 15 September: Access to justice and new technologies". It also states "The conference will be held in English." and provides the dates and times: "14-15 September 2021", "09:00-12:00 CEST", and "14:00-17:00 WIB". At the bottom, the source is cited as "Quelle: https://www.bmjv.de/DE/Ministerium/Veranstaltungen/Anmeldung/Mehr-Info-zb3_node.html?jsessionid=4DA484CB1FC63AB42B5913D995510753.2_cid324?cms_eventid=16554074". The footer contains links for "Cookies", "imprint", and "Data protection".

The event will be held over Zoom (for speakers) and livestreamed with slight delay on a customized platform.

This platform has common features to enable audience interaction, such as a Q&A/chat function and polling.

Speakers and presentations will be “spotlighted” by the technical team (behind the scenes, operating via Zoom).

The following screenshots illustrate what this then looks like for the audience viewing the livestream.

Speaker with name and designation appears with banderole at the bottom – and if needed, alongside their presentations or other panelists.

Speakers are either joining from the studio or remotely from their respective locations.
